Religious Leaders Advise Students In Prout Chapel

A counseling program by various ministers and priests of Bowling Green will take place in the two vestibule rooms of the Prout Chapel.

The program will begin Tuesday, Dec. 8, under the sponsorship of the Committee on Religious Activities, which is a University inter-faith committee.

An opportunity for students to discuss and consult with religious leaders will now be offered to University students. The Committee and the University is of the belief that an opportunity of this kind is very necessary for their education.

For that reason, the Committee contacted many ministers in Bowling Green seeking their cooperation. The result is the beginning of a regular consultation program of which the Committee hopes the student body will avail itself.

The consultation periods so far established for the Chapel are Tuesday, Rev. John Hallock of the Christian Church, 1 to 2 p.m. in the East room; Rev. P.H. Courlas of the Gospel Tabernacle, 2 to 3 p.m. in the West room; and Father William T. Sullivan of the Catholic Church, 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the East room. Wednesday, Father William T. Sullivan, 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the East room, and Rev. Richard R. Hansen of the Free Methodist Church, 4 to 5 p.m. in the West room.

Thursday, Rev. John Hallock, 1 to 2 p.m. in the East room; Rev. P.H. Courlas, 2 to 3 p.m. in the West room; and Father William Sullivan, 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the East room. Friday, Father James Trautwein of the Episcopal Church, 4 to 5 p.m. in the East room.

The Committee members are Dean Ralph G. Harshman, dean of administration; John Cold, president of UCF; Howard Kane, associate professor of business administration; Frank Gould, president of Newman Club; Dr. Melvin Hyman, assistant professor of speech; and Ronald Cohen, president of the Jewish student group. Stuart Givens, coordinator of student affairs, is ex-officio member.

The Committee on Religious Activities urges all students to take advantage of the opportunity offered to discuss with these men any religious problems that are of concern to them.

Hold Tryouts Tonight For Children's Play

Tryouts for the annual children's play will be held tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Gate Theatre, John Hepler, director, announced.

The play, "The King's Balcony," will be presented at the University on Jan. 14, and will go on tour in the spring.

Everyone is invited to try out, Mr. Hepler said. There are parts for four women and three men.

Singer Askey Wins Varsity Club Prize

Darrell Askey singing "Come Back To Sorrento" won the $25 first prize in the Varsity Club show Sunday night in the Main Auditorium.

Masters of ceremony for the variety show were Richard Moss, Thomas Conway, and Jack Dewan, who introduced and ad libbed between the acts. The first prize was presented to Askey by Dean Marr, president of the Varsity Club.

The other finalists from the preliminaries held Friday and Saturday night each received $5. They were Shirley Lehr, Nancy Gebhardt and Maxine Brown, Sue Jordan, Herb Moorehead, Mary Anna Scott and Dorothy Farley, Sue and Sally Moran, Barbara Hemmer and Jane Fox, Jackie Gribbons and Helen Sikora, and Ruth Boutet.

The acts were judged by an electric applause meter backstage. Chairman of the show was Ed Levy.

MARILYN EARLY

Marilyn Early has been voted Honorary Wing Commander of the Bowling Green Air Force ROTC by members of the cadet corps. Miss Early, a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, will have the title of Honorary Lt. Colonel.

The Air Force ROTC cadets voted for their coed sponsors to reign during the 1953-54 school year, according to Cadet Lt. Col. John R. Domer.

Others selected for honorary positions in the cadet corps were: Barbara Wheeler, Alpha Xi Delta, Major, Group I; Carol Fischer, Alpha Chi Omega, Major, Group II; Margarita Keller, Shatzell Hall, Captain, Squadron A; Carol Price, Shatzell Hall, Captain, Squadron B; Joyce Ridenour, Alpha Chi Omega, Captain, Squadron C; Mary Lou Bowman, Gamma Phi Beta, Captain, Squadron D.

Throughout the school year, the Air Force ROTC Wing has scheduled certain social and military affairs at which the coed sponsors will participate.

These affairs include Armistice Day Parade, Military Ball, Final Review Ceremony, Federal Inspection Luncheon, and Parades.

Forty-three pictures were submitted to the Air Force ROTC cadet corps for voting.

Business Students Issue Newsletter

"The Clearing House," a newsletter printed by the business education department, was sent out for the first time late in November. The paper was mailed to approximately 350 business teachers in Northwestern Ohio high schools, Dr. Galen Stutsman, chairman of the department announced.

Bloodmobile Here; Today Last Chance To Make Donation

Today is the last chance for Bowling Green students to donate blood to the Red Cross bloodmobile. It will be set up in the Rec Hall from 9 a.m. until 4 this afternoon.

Alpha Phi Omega, sponsors of the blood donation campaign, have set a quota of 125 pints for today's collection. Students gave 143 pints on the last visit of the bloodmobile.

Registration is not necessary for donation. Students over 21 years old may stop in anytime between the listed hours and give. Sixty persons who were not registered were among the 143 donors at the collection in November.

During the past two years the Red Cross has collected a total of 1,020 pints of blood in its visits to the University.

Senate Schedules Cut System Forum For Monday Night

Plans for a new cut system will be discussed by four students and two faculty members in an open forum scheduled by Student Senate. This discussion will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 14, in the main aud.

Elizabeth Ayres, Jerry Helwig, Roger Kasten, and Robert Bostick will present the four plans that have been discussed by the faculty. Two faculty members, who have not yet been selected, will state the faculty's view of these four suggestions and also summarize the historical background of the systems formerly used at the University.

New attendance regulations were deemed advisable by the administration at the beginning of this semester and a temporary plan was installed. Under this plan, which is being used on a trial basis, the individual faculty instructors notify the dean of the college in which the student is enrolled when his absences endanger his "academic performance or the morale of the class."

After the discussion by the students and faculty members, the forum will be opened to questions and opinions from the gallery. Moderator Richard Daley is chairman of the Senate committee in charge of the forum. Senators Herbert Collier, William Bittner, Sue Carlisle, Jean Goldinger, Bostick, and Kasten are also on the committee.

'Right You Are' Opening Ready For Tomorrow Night At Gate Theatre

The somewhat strange conduct of a government official, his wife, and his mother-in-law, is the subject of "Right You Are," the three-act play which will be presented at Gate Theatre Dec. 9-13.

Why the newly-arrived government official, Ponzia (Carl Balson), keeps his wife (Jean Butler) and mother-in-law (Betty Idle) constantly separated, and why he never allows his wife to appear in public are the causes for the speculation which is the entire activity of the play.

The scheming of neighbors to learn the reasons for such strange happenings result in conflicting "explanations" from Ponzia and his mother-in-law. The persistent efforts of the neighbors finally cause a public appearance of the mysterious Mrs. Ponzia, who explains everything. Or does she? Only Liedtke (James Liedtke), who has looked on bemusedly during the entire affair, understands.

The mysterious nature and psychological overtones of the entire play are typical of the author, Luigi Pirandello. The audience, as well as the cast, is left to draw its own conclusions as to the solution of the mystery.

The play will open at 8:15 in the Gate Theatre Wednesday through Saturday nights. There will be a matinee at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets will be available at the box office in the Well from 10-12 and at the Gate Theatre from 10-12 and 1-4 every day through Friday. The box office will also be open prior to each performance.

Eyas Subscriptions Go On Sale Today

Subscriptions for Eyas, campus literary magazine, will go on sale in the Nest today, according to Mary Jeanne Connelly, editor of the publication. Two issues of Eyas will be published during the 1953-54 school year.

A subscription for the two issues can be purchased for 60 cents, but if they are bought separately, the cost is 35 cents for each.

Student contributions are still being accepted at the English Bldg. according to Miss Connelly. They are reviewed by a board made up of members of the editorial staff. Deadline for the first issue is Jan. 11.

Eyas, which means "baby falcon," is a magazine featuring student written essays, short stories, book reports, and poetry. Quite appropriately, a stuffed falcon will adorn the subscription desk in the Nest.

Appointment Bureau Sets Up Interviews

Representatives of eight companies have been on campus so far this year, stated Gene Chandler, assistant director of the bureau of appointments. These representatives have talked on the average with eight or ten students from the College of Business Administration at their respective interviews. Mr. Chandler remarked that the companies have been especially interested in talking with students studying accounting or sales.

The interviews are only a preliminary hearing between the students and the companies. Nothing definite is decided upon at these interviews. It merely gives the company a chance to see what the student has to offer and for the student to see what the company has to offer. If, during the interview, it appears that there is a possibility of the student working for the company, additional interviews are held at the plant offices, stated Mr. Chandler.

He remarked that the companies are interested in talking with and perhaps employing those male students who may be called into the Armed Forces in a few months. The company feels that if the student is employed with the company during these few months, he becomes orientated with its system and upon discharge from the service would be able to go immediately to work.

Mr. Chandler urges students in business administration to take advantage of these interviews.

WBGU Schedules Classical Comedy

The Comedie Francaise, a series of French classical plays, which is aired over WBGU, began Friday, Nov. 20, Prof. Sidney Stone, station director, said.

The series, all in French, will continue for several weeks, begins at 6:30 p.m., lasting an hour.

The Comedie Francaise was written by Jean Baptiste Poquelin Moliere, who lived from 1622-1673. Moliere, one of the most original of French comedians, despised the formalism of some of his contemporaries, such as La Fontaine, Jean Racine, and Pierre Corneille.

Moliere was one of the keenest critics of human nature. He liked to ridicule pretentiousness—the silly conceit of social climbers in affecting a culture beyond their intelligence or the pompous claims of ignorant physicians in professing infallible skill.

A feature of the series is "L'Ecole des Maris," or "The School for Husbands."

Mr. Stone recommends this series for drama techniques as far as production is concerned, even though knowledge of French is limited.

Three ROTC Teams Enter Rifle Matches

Col. Thomas R. Malone, professor of military science and tactics, announced that the Army ROTC entered three five-man teams in the William Randolph Hearst Rifle Matches.

This is the 33rd Annual William Randolph Hearst Rifle Competition. It is open to Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC units and is supervised by the Department of Defense. Results of the match will be published in January when team trophies and individual awards will be presented. The championship team will receive a cup and five championship medals, one for each member of the team.

Col. Malone said that freshman cadets will form one of the teams.

Student Accidents Average One Daily

In a recent survey conducted by Mrs. Jane D. Igou, health administrator, the amount of campus accidents involving students has been compiled. In the first nine weeks of school this semester, 71 accidents have been treated by the Hospital. This is an average of about one accident per day, according to Mrs. Igou.

Ankle injuries totaling 14 head the list of cases treated, with injuries to the fingers and hands following a close second and third. Accidents occurring to the students here on campus range from a cut finger to jaw fracture. Mrs. Igou stated that there is little evidence of "accident proneness" in as much as only three people have been treated more than once as an accident case.

Pseudo Female members of the Varsity Club chorus line and their real female coaches count the intake from the opening night of the club's show Friday.

In Our Opinion

A Labeled Generation?

Are today's college students the silent generation? The thoughtful generation? Can we be labeled at all?

In an article on college students, Time magazine several years ago labeled us the "silent" generation. In this month's Holiday magazine, playwright Arthur Miller presents a controversial comparison of his college generation of the '30s with the college students of today. Miller attended the University of Michigan and recently returned to his alma mater and talked with students and faculty there.

The college generation of the '20s and '30s is characterized by its vociferous individuality. The University of Michigan campus jumped with speakers, enthusiastic students distributed leaflets, held meetings—issues flooded the campus. Yet all this was in a world of its own, comfortably separated from the crashing world of the depression around them.

It was a different campus, and a far larger one, that Miller returned to. Among the student body he found a subdued tone and a feeling that society is under control. Campus leaders expressed the thought that anything out of line with conservative ideas might be labeled communistic. Students worried, not about what their fellow students thought, but about the reaction of family, the hometown, and future employers.

Miller did not find the college student of today dull or apathetic—if by that our critics mean without thought. For he found that we do think. He characterized the difference between his generation and ours this way: "What so many of them really feel . . . they are not saying in public nowadays, if it seems to question that this is the best of all possible worlds." Again we are the "silent" generation.

The question of why logically follows. Here is our theory:

Yesterday's college students are today's university educators and administrators; they are in government and business as a part of the mass education, gigantic corporations, and machine-like world we know. Perhaps the chaos, turmoil, and insecurity of their depression days in college has caused them to build for us an overly-secure world. Things were headed in that direction before Miller's generation graduated from the colleges, it is true. In college his generation was outwardly expressive, seemingly thinking and acting, yet we, as college students, do not find much of this reflected in the world today. Instead educators, administrators, and our parents place emphasis upon training for a job and fitting into "our place" when we finish school.

To the older generation there is a silence on the campus, an obvious lack of public comment which seems to stem from an intangible fear. As Miller mentioned, it does not seem to be a fear of criticism by fellow students—for bull sessions still bring forth radical ideas—but of criticism and censure by parents, future employers, and the administration. If we question aloud that the world, as the adult generation has arranged it, could be improved upon, we too often are quieted before our ideas can be heard. Student thought remains among the students, and is seldom shared with the older generation. We are thinking, even though we are silent.

Lines at Deadline

The Telephone Company reports that with the beginning of each school year an increased number of slugs and other objects are found in the pay telephones on campus. Most successful of the guilty rascals was the fellow who tied a string to the coin, enabling him to retrieve it at three-minute intervals—a new way to stretch a nickel!

The senior was stumped by one of the daily test questions in educational psychology. Proving that she had read the assignment, and not wishing to turn in a blank sheet of paper, she solved her problem by explaining that plateaus are a necessary part of learning, and must take place before further learning can take place—such as in her case.

Juniors and seniors who remember the half-hour Sunday afternoon chime concerts and have been wondering what happened to them, may be interested in knowing one explanation—they disturbed the reactions of the rats in the psychology laboratory going through maze tests.

An appropriate motto for students found in the Nest at all hours—"Work fascinates us—we can sit and look at it for hours."

Hopes were high on campus Nov. 23 and 24 when it was supposedly announced that students travelling home by bus could leave at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday. Quite a few fraternity houses received phone calls Monday night telling them they could leave early because of the bus strike. The joy was short-lived when it was discovered to be a colossal hoax. Some people have an odd sense of humor.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Two B-G students, while cruising about the metropolis, came upon two adjoining stores in the downtown district. In the window of a hardware store was a sign, "Seat Covers For Sale." A huge arrow pointed north. What was north of the arrow? A large sign in the window of the adjoining store reading "Girdles."

Pershing Rifle Company Commander Carl Henne supervises members as they hook up the howitzer before meeting "enemy" Toledo University members in a battle Saturday night.

Pershing Rifles Save BG In Battle Of Grand Rapids

1. The General Situation is precarious. The enemy is advancing in force southward from Toledo with the obvious intention of destroying the vital educational facilities of Bowling Green. He must be stopped at all costs.

a. An enemy infantry battalion has captured Grand Rapids and is attacking from the north and west toward Bowling Green.

b. The 1st Bn., 2nd Regt. of 37th Inf. Div. has met the enemy but is being driven back with heavy casualties.

2. Our mission is to give direct support to the 1st Bn. and thereby stop the advance of the enemy.

3. a. The firing battery will be laid on compass 170.

b. Immediately upon arrival the 2nd platoon will prepare communication net and set up perimeter of defense.

4. A telephone net will be strung along the perimeter to prevent another surprise attack. The password is "Marilyn," the counter sign, "Monster."

5. All men will be issued small arms and hand grenades filled with flour for use in case the enemy over-runs the position. When the enemy is destroyed the company will return to Bowling Green to clean the weapons. Refreshments will be served at that time.

Such was the operations order of Pershing Rifles Company Commander to his men on the night of 5 December, 1800 hours (six o'clock).

The convoy made an impressive sight as it headed from Bowling Green to the battlefield at Grand Rapids. The men knew that the battle would be tough and each man checked all his equipment as he rode in the trucks behind which were towed the all-important 105 mm howitzers. Telephone equipment, flour grenades, fire crackers, noisemakers, and sandwiches were counted and recounted.

When the well-organized company reached their position they moved swiftly and silently to set up the guns, communications, enemy noisemaker traps. The executive commander, 1st Lt. James Bick joined with Captain Henne and soon had the howitzers prepared for action. The communications net under 1st Lt. Harold Miller was soon strung as was the noisemakers under 2nd Lt. Robert Bone.

At about 1100 hours the enemy came through! The switchboard operator no longer could hear telephones 3, 4, or 5. It was obvious that the enemy had cut the wires and was coming in between stations 2 and 3! Quickly Commander Henne sent more men to the front positions where Toledo

University was coming in force. Heavy casualties were recorded on the Toledo side not counting half of them who must have been killed with two blank rounds fired from the howitzers in the Bowling Green position. The two howitzers were sacrificed when the enemy moved in from behind from an area that was "out of bounds" to destroy the guns. However, the enemy's casualties and the subsequent checking of their advance outweighed this inconvenience and qualified the report: "Mission Accomplished."

BG Meets Kent In MAC Opener; Falcons Trounce Detroit 78-53

Kent State Stops JCU 74-61, Team Lacking Experience

By DICK JONES

Bowling Green's Falcons, their appetites whetted by an opening game 78-53 win over Detroit, travel to Kent State tonight for their first Mid-American Conference battle.

Experience could be the deciding factor in the contest. Bowling Green has an edge in this department for Kent has only five lettermen.

Of the Golden Flash squad of 13 players, eight are sophomores. "Our success this season will depend a lot on these sophomores. If they can adapt themselves to a faster brand of ball, we'll be all right," said Coach Bud Haerr.

If their opening game is any indication, the Golden Flashes will be "all right." Turning on the heat in the final period they whipped a tough John Carroll University five, 74-61.

A 6-2 junior, center Lowell Shumaker, sparked the Kent win. Shumaker possesses a good hook shot but is at his best popping away from farther out on the court. He was on last year's Blue and Gold starting team.

George Hamilton, 6-3 senior forward, is the other returning start-board, Hamilton will offer a test for Bowling Green's Clarence Yackey.

Other probable starters are forward Dan Potopsky, 6-2 sophomore, and guards Kyle Worrall, 6-1 senior, and Don Gindlesberger, 6-0 sophomore.

Bowling Green Coach Harold Anderson will probably stick with the same opening lineup as used in the Detroit clash. This would mean Jim Gerber at center, Al Bianchi and Clarence Yackey at the forward posts, with Lou Drago and Wally Server manning the guards.

Following the Kent encounter, the Falcons travel to Miami for an important conference clash with the Redskins on Dec. 11. They return home on Dec. 16 to meet Western Reserve.

All Campus Swim Meet Scheduled Dec. 15

Campus fraternity and independent swimming meets will be held Wednesday and Dec. 15, according to David O. Matthews, director of intramurals.

Fraternity preliminaries will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., and the finals Dec. 15. No independent preliminaries will be held. The fraternity meet will be scored on a team basis, while the independent affair will be strictly individual. The independent finals will also be held Dec. 15.

Fraternity team coaches will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in 103 in the Men's Gym. All fraternity entries must be turned in then. Independent entries must be turned in to the intramural office before Wednesday.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners in both meets.

Members of Faculty Win Art Honors

Honors recently came to Otto G. Oevirk, Karl Richards, and Charles Lakofsky, members of the art faculty.

Mr. Oevirk, instructor of art, entered the Forty-fourth Annual Exhibition for Michigan Artists sponsored by the Detroit Institute of Arts from Nov. 17 through Dec. 20. He received the contemporary arts award for his painting called "University Housing."

The jurors for this show were Edgar C. Schenck, director of the Albright Art Gallery in Buffalo, who is noted for his interest in contemporary art; and Isabel Bishop, a nationally-known painter. They chose 287 winners from the 3,000 entries.

Mr. Richards, assistant professor of art, was awarded a prize for the best original color scheme in the Area Artists' Autumn Annual sponsored by the Young Ohio Butler Art Institute. This show also runs from Nov. 17 through Dec. 20.

Mr. Lakofsky, assistant professor of art, was invited to enter one of his pots in the Fiber-Clay-Metal exhibition at St. Paul Gallery, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Bianchi, Gerber, Drago Pace First Win; Outlook Good

By DICK BUDD

The Falcons opened their thirty-eighth basketball season with a splash by downing the Titans from Detroit 78-53. Al Bianchi led the scoring parade dunking 11 field goals and three free throws for 25 counters and scoring honors for the evening.

Signifying the start of the basketball season Thursday night Falcon Jim Gerber is the first to crash through the paper hoop of "Good Luck" before the game.

Yackey Rough Rebounder, Lauded By Detroit's Sparrow

By BILL ROGERS

An ex-Marine returned Thursday night and with him came the hopes of a great Falcon basketball team.

Yes, big Clarence Yackey is

Paul Arizin, Rip Gish, Leroy Smith, and six other ex-college stars. Undoubtedly, the experience gained playing in the Marines will help him, especially in his scoring ability.

Big "Yoc" came to Bowling Green with an impressive high school record at Strasburg, a Class B school in Tuscarawas County. In his junior and senior years, he was named to the all-Ohio team.

His first season at BG was spent mainly on the bench. A fellow named Charlie Share was cavorting at the pivot for the Falcons that year. In 27 games he managed to score only 53 points, not nearly enough for a BG pivot man.

In the fall of 1951, Bowling Green's cage squad made a tour through Brazil. It was here that "Yoc" gained valuable experience. Coming home from the South American trip, Yackey was responsible for a huge trophy that had been presented to the squad in San Paulo. The trophy weighed 39 pounds, but Yackey carried it with one hand and his suitcase with the other.

In his junior year he scored more than 200 points at forward position. Jim Gerber was the pivot-man then as now. Yackey did the heavy rebounding while Gerber was scoring the points.

When Yackey was discharged, he weighed 225 pounds. Since basketball practice started, he has dropped to a "skinny" 210. He is so strong and hard to move that teammates have dubbed him with the nickname, "Tree."

The finest praises a player can receive are those given by his opponents. After Yackey's personal battle with Detroit's Guy Sparrow for rebound control, Sparrow came up to "Yoc" to tell him, "You are one of the best rebounders I have ever played against." What more is there to say?

back. The 6 feet, 5 inch Yackey made known his return to the cage wars with an exhibition of rebounding Thursday night that few fans will forget. The powerful forward nabbed 21 rebounds, completely controlling both boards.

In a game that had numerous offensive stars, he was easily the stand-out defensive player. Yackey was the main reason Detroit could score only 53 points.

Two years and two months ago, the Falcon star left school to report to the Marines. There he played for Parris Island. He averaged 11.5 points a game the 1951-52 season and then upped it to 15 points in 34 games last season. Yackey was named to the all-Marine team in 1953 along with Paced by Lou Drago, Bianchi and Jim Gerber, the Falcons jumped off to an early lead that they held all game. Drago, connecting with his one hand push, sparked Bowling Green to a first period lead 22-13. Falcon superiority became evident early in the game as Gerber and Clarence Yackey took control of the backboards and the tightly knitted defense held the Titans' offense in check.

In the second quarter Al Bianchi's deadly fall away jump shot began to connect and accounted for 11 of the Falcons' 22 points in the second frame. Although the Falcons were in complete control, they were playing on shaky ground. Gerber and Bianchi started the second half with three personal fouls each.

Bianchi kept his scoring surge going into the third period, picking up seven more markers. With 4:42 remaining in the third period the Titans were handed a blow when their 6.6 center Bob Decker fouled out. Decker had been chief rebounder for the Detroit team throughout the game.

Guy Sparrow was the sparkplug in the Titan attack scoring 16 points. Ralph Goldstein proved to be a problem for the Falcons. The 5.11 guard was all over the court breaking up plays and finding the holes in the Falcon defense for his driving layup shot.

The Falcons rolled on to a 64-41 lead at the three-quarter mark and wound up the game winning by 25 points, 78-53.

With the return of Yackey and Gerber to this year's squad, plus the prowess of Bianchi and Drago, the Falcons could very well live up to their pre-season rating as eighth in the nation. According to what we've seen in this first game, we look at Yackey not so much as the big scorer, but as power under the boards and a key man in the Falcon defense. Gerber is once more beginning to hit with his deadly hook from the outside, and along with Yackey should keep the rebounds well in favor of the home team.

The Falcons have a long and tough schedule yet to play, including some of the toughest in the nation. If the Falcons show up as well against the remainder of their schedule, Bowling Green will be a big name on the basketball map.

Sparked by Jim Sparling's 13 points and Jim Tucker's 12 counters the Falcons jumped off to a good lead. With approximately three minutes to go the Frosh held down an eight point lead. The Titans began to put on the pressure and brought the game to a wild finish, the Frosh winning by one point.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

Here's a sad cotton tale: poor Paul was in a stew about his hare until his paw wrote: "I eat you got a bun on because your girl left you. Now, lettuce look at the bee's facts. To get in on the bunny huggin', smart rabbits foot it down to any toilet goods counter for Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's biggest-selling hare tonic. So fuzz thing tomorrow, invest 29¢ in a bottle or handy tube. Contains soothing Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. Grooms the hare. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Sheedy tried Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he's a jump ahead of every Tom, Dick and Harvey. So what're you waiting for? Get Wildroot Cream-Oil today, and ask for Wildroot at your barber's. You're bound to like it!

Commissioner Wants Robin Hood Ousted; This Is A Collegian?

By CAROL FISCHER

With so many controversial hearings on the subject of Communism going on in the country today it seems a new epitome was reached. According to a member of the Indiana State Textbook Commission, the story of Robin Hood should be banned. It seems that Robbie took money from the rich and gave to the poor... this is the Communistic line and the member felt the book should be banned.

In a recent issue of the Kent State University paper, an article was written on their stadium dorm called "Stalag 17." The dorm, it appears, lacks telephones and a few other facilities. A sarcastic freshman living in the dorm made this reply when asked, "Is there anything you don't like about living here?" He replied, "Yeah, no girls."

Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland added a new incentive to the athletic endeavors. Prior to the last game of the season Dean Newhouse announced that there would be no school the following Monday if the team won. The team lost to Reserve and there was school, but anyhow, it was a good idea.

It seems that in Canada there is a different interpretation of a college boy. According to the Queen's Journal, a father's view point of his college-going son is: "Between the senility of second childhood and the lighthearted lechery of the teens we find the college boy. It appears they are found everywhere breaking train windows, tearing down goal posts, inciting riots, or jumping bail. Mothers love them, big girls love them, and Satan protects them."

"He is laziness, idleness, and hope of the future with an overdrawn bankbook in his pocket. He likes good liquor, bad liquor, double features, playtex ads, girls, and football week ends. He is not much for hopeful mothers, irate fathers, sharp-eyed ushers, alarm clocks, or letters from the dean."

"A college boy is a magical creature. You can lock him out of your heart but you can't lock him out of your liquor cabinet. You can get him off your mind but you can't get him off your expense account. Might as well give up: he is your jailer, your boss and your albatross — a bleary-eyed, girl-chasing bundle of worry. But, when you come home at night with only the shattered pieces of your hopes and dreams, he can make them mighty insignificant with four magic words: 'I flunked out, Dad.'"

Students Queried On Day Vacation

In last week's issue of the B-G News the Student Senate column included news of a Senate suggestion to give students a day off before final examinations. Some University students were asked their opinion of this.

Jane Spreng, junior: "I think it's an excellent idea; however, it is not too practical as far as the working student is concerned."

Charles Hodges, sophomore: "This would give the student time to concentrate on studying for the first exam. Under the present system the first examination is usually more difficult because of the limited time for study."

Joseph De Luca, freshman: "A fine idea! This free time would enable students to study more, especially the first few tests. But since exams would be given on Saturday those who have to work should be given consideration."

Phyllis Kaczmarik, junior: "For those who have most of their exams the first few days this would be a very good idea."

Faith Johnson, senior: "It's a very good idea to have a free day. It isn't fair for those who have classes until 4 p. m. to expect them to take a final exam the next morning at 8."

Marge Riehl, junior: "Besides more studying, a free day would give the student an opportunity to rest before exams."
